– THE SIX PRACTICES OF – High-Impact Non-Profits

MONDAY MAY 19

After four years of in-depth study and research, Heather McLeod Grant isolated the six practices high-impact non-profits have in common.

She shares them with you May 19.

Her groundbreaking book, Forces For Good: The Six Practices of High Impact Non-Profits, co-authored with Leslie Crutchfield, is fueling discussion on the ways non-profits can re-invent themselves now and achieve improved outcomes in the future. This is the first time either author presents their findings in our area and it promises to be an eye-opening event.

Forces For Good is in its fourth printing. It received best book awards from Economist magazine and the Association of Fund Raising Professionals.

On May 19, learn more about policy advocacy, private sector partnering, inspiring volunteers, collaborating with other non-profits, the art of adaptation and breakthrough leadership strategies. As a non-profit executive or board President, you owe it to yourself, your employees and your community to attend this FREE, impactful session.

To reserve your seat, please respond by MAY 15, 2008 with the following information for each attendee:

Name, Title, Email, Company Name and Phone Number.
