Shawn Murdock:

You don't have that kind of relationship without a lot of trust built up, and so absolutely I would recommend and I have recommend Barnes Dennig. It's always stellar. In fact, I'm always kind of amazed at how much Laura and everyone who I work with at Barnes Dennig know.

They've made every transition, from a small company to a larger company, through the sale last year of the business, which was completely over my head and very complex. They were just critical to everything I've done beyond the sale last year of the business and now into estate planning and setting up trusts, et cetera, jumping into the conversation with all of the knowledge that they have, had all the confidence in the world between our team and Laura and the BD team that everything was covered.

The partner that I needed was someone like Barnes Dennig, who literally takes everything you have, runs with it, brings it back on a silver platter, it's done. I never have to think about it, never have to worry about it. And the other thing is I don't have to worry that they haven't done something. I don't have to worry about any of it because Barnes is just so helpful, so insightful and just has always been impeccable.
