Paul Gaitan:

It's turned out to be just a wonderful relationship. I've really enjoyed all the people I've worked with at the company. They deliver tremendous value. They've got a good sensitivity for the customer needs and it's been a great partnership.

The work is fantastic. They understand the needs of smaller and mid-size businesses. It's a really no-brainer for me to recommend them. I've had a chance to work with some of their competitors and see firsthand the work that's delivered, and far and away, love using Barnes Dennig for everything.

The best way is understanding what your client is all about, the manufacturing services, financial services, different industries, construction, automotive, consumer goods. And making sure that what's going on with your business is the first priority and then comparing that to whatever's coming down the pike for changes. It's just a good vibe that I get from every interaction that I've had with all their personnel. And Barnes Dennig does a fantastic job of thinking about the client first.
